

BREAD LOAF

30th ANNUAL SESSION
at Bread Loaf - Vermont

WRITERS CONFERENCE

AUGUST 17-31
1955

Two weeks' intensive study of writing methods and techniques, lectures, staff criticism—in seminars and private interviews—of work submitted.

Non-Fiction

RICHARD H. ROVERE, Washington Correspondent of The New Yorker, contributor to Harper's, etc.

FLETCHER PRATT, biographer, article writer, military historian, author of many books, including Ordeal by Fire.

Verse

JOHN CIARDI, author of From Time to Time and other volumes of poetry; Dante's Inferno (translation); editor of Mid-Century American Poets.

ADRIENNE CECILE RICH, had a winning volume in 1951 for the Yale Series of Younger Poets, entitled "A Change of World"; Guggenheim Fellow in Poetry, 1952; will publish this fall with Harper's a volume of poetry entitled "The Diamond Cutters"; has contributed poems to Harper's and The New Yorker.

Fiction

A. B. GUTHRIE, JR., Pulitzer Prize winner in the novel for The Way West, author of screen plays.

MAY SARTON, author of the current Faithful Are The Wounds and other novels.

WILLIAM SLOANE, publisher, author of the recently re-issued novel To Walk the Night, editor of Stories for Tomorrow.

RACHEL MACKENZIE, short story writer, contributor of stories to Harper's, The New Yorker, Woman's Day, Good Housekeeping, etc., and experienced teacher of writers.

Director of the Conference

THEODORE MORRISON, author, The Portable Chaucer, The Stones of the House, etc.; English Department, Harvard University.

Evening Speakers

A reading by ROBERT FROST, poet; an evening of music by ROLAND STURGES, pianist; talks by visiting speakers such as LINCOLN BARNETT, author of The Universe and Dr. Einstein, Writing on Life, and of the Life magazine series "The World We Live In.", etc.

The Bread Loaf Writers' Conference is one of the Summer Schools of Middlebury College. Its mountain campus, with the Bread Loaf Inn and surrounding cottages, is situated about twelve miles from Middlebury, on the edge of extensive National Forest tracts well up in the Green Mountains.

All-inclusive rate begins at $135.00. For Catalogues, Costs, and All Information address:

THE LANGUAGE SCHOOLS OFFICE
MIDDLEBURY COLLEGE
MIDDLEBURY, VERMONT

PLEASE POST